I have reviewed the following code of conduct with my child, and we agree to abide by the administrative regulations of The Agnes Irwin School as follows: Racial, religious or sexual harassment will not be tolerated. Any form of physical violence or verbal abuse will not be tolerated. Dishonesty in any form, including lying, cheating, stealing and plagiarism, is forbidden. The possession, use, evidence of use or sale of alcohol or drugs by any student, any time is forbidden. There is No Smoking allowed by any student at any time in school or on campus. Students will be held accountable by governmental authority under Pennsylvania State Law for defacement or destruction of school property within the buildings or on the campus. Students may not leave campus without signing out with the Summer Session staff. The Agnes Irwin Summer Session reserves the right to dismiss or suspend a student if, in the judgment of the School authorities, such action is in the best interest of the School. I permit The Agnes Irwin School to use, in whole or in part, photographs, videos, written extractions, and voice recordings of Summer Session students for the purpose of illustration in publications and on the web. I hereby agree to assume the risk in full for my child's participation in The Agnes Irwin Summer Session and do so with full knowledge of the inherent risks. I fully and forever release The Agnes Irwin School, the Summer Session, their officers, directors, employees and agents and their successors and assigns from liability for any and all injuries, losses, claims, liability, costs and/or expenses which result from my child's participation in The Agnes Irwin Summer Session.

* If insufficient enrollment requires the cancellation of a course, all deposits and fees associated with that course will be refunded. We regret that after June 1, we cannot refund money for class changes or for times missed due to change in plans, family vacation or a child's illness. Late pickup fees will be assessed for students who are not picked up in a timely manner at the completion of their scheduled day.
